What is a Code of Conduct?

A Code of Conduct is a set of guidelines adopted by an organization to address what behaviors are expected and appropriate. The main function of an organization's Code of Conduct is to make the fundamental values and principles which guide the activities of the organization, within the organization itself and to all external interlocutors.

Why a Code of Conduct?

We, as Directors, employees and collaborators of Giunti Psychometrics, have the opportunity to influence the communities in which we operate and to benefit when we act correctly. Since it is not always easy to understand what is the best choice to make and how to act in the most correct manner, Giunti Psychometrics has therefore decided to provide company guidelines and a code of conduct (hereinafter the "Code") approved by the Board of Directors of Giunti Psychometrics S.r.l., with the aim of ensuring that all members of Giunti Psychometrics act with the highest integrity, respecting the laws in force, to build a better future for our Company and the communities in which we operate.

What the Code of Conduct is based on?

Giunti Psychometrics endorses, and its code of conduct incorporates, the principles of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations Organization ("UNO"), the International Labour Organisation ("ILO") and the Conventions and the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development ("OECD") Guidelines for multinational enterprises.

Is the Code of Conduct exhaustive?

The Code aims to ensure that all members of Giunti Psychometrics act with the utmost integrity, respecting the laws in force, to build a better future for our Company and the communities in which we operate. No document can reasonably cover all the cases that may arise in the performance of one's work. The Code, therefore, guides correct behavior by pointing out cases where additional assistance is needed.

What does the Code of Conduct include?

Neither the Code nor any of the principles, rules or procedures contained in it are intended to constitute nor do they constitute a contractual right that may be used against Giunti Psychometrics by any employee or collaborator, shareholder, customer, or supplier. The guidance contained in the Code helps us to understand what is expected of us, as members of Giunti Psychometrics, and ensures that we are acting with awareness and integrity.

Who are the Recipients of the Code of Conduct?

The Code applies to all members of the Board of Directors and to all employees, both full-time and part-time, of Giunti Psychometrics. The Code also applies to all collaborators, consultants and companies acting on behalf of Giunti Psychometrics, anywhere in the world. Since Giunti Psychometrics operates in different countries and, therefore, in different legal contexts, recipients of the Code may be subject to additional rules set by their direct employer. While we believe that the Code does not conflict with the spirit of those rules applied in the individual countries in which Giunti Psychometrics operates, requests for clarification of any potential conflict situations may be made to the Human Resources Department and the Legal Department.

For those entities which hold a minority shareholding, Giunti Psychometrics undertakes to ensure that these entities adopt codes of conduct whose principles are inspired by those contained in this Code or in any case do not conflict with them.

Lastly, Giunti Psychometrics endeavors to ensure that the Code is considered good practice and is also respected by those with whom it has business relations, such as: suppliers, dealers, consultants and agents.

What are my responsibilities?

Giunti Psychometrics aims to create an environment that promotes its values and encourages ethical conduct, in order to create a collaborative working environment that respects human dignity. All members of Giunti Psychometrics must treat others as they expect to be treated, including clients and other external parties who have a working relationship with the Company. Therefore, Giunti Psychometrics expects the Code to be respected by all recipients, together with all applicable laws and regulations. The Code must be complied with whenever recipients work on behalf of Giunti Psychometrics or interact with other subjects of the Company. All members of Giunti Psychometrics must be aware that, by their conduct, they represent the Company, even outside working hours, if they act or may be understood to act on behalf of Giunti Psychometrics.

What are the basic principles of the integrity system?

There are three elements of the integrity system of Giunti Psychometrics:

- a) The Principles: these are general statements expressing Giunti Psychometrics' commitment to ensure respect for appropriate company and personal conduct.
- b) The Rules: these set the guidelines for conduct in accordance with our Principles. They serve as a standard; they are a tool for juggling complex situations and achieving desired results; they are the ground rules that must guide our daily actions. These rules are an integral part of the Code.
- c) The Procedures: when more information is needed, the Procedures explain in detail how to act in compliance with the Rules. The scope of some Procedures may be limited to certain geographical areas/business sectors, as appropriate.

The nature of some of Giunti Psychometrics' objectives may make it necessary to apply more specific rules of conduct than those set out in this Code. In these cases, additional standards may be established for specific geographic areas, business sectors, or individual activities in the form of Specific Procedures or other rules. The Code also requires you to follow those rules that are applicable to your geographic area, business sector or individual activity. In any case, all members of Giunti Psychometrics must comply with the provisions contained in the Code.

In order to ensure compliance with the Code, the legal function of Giunti Psychometrics will carry out audits of compliance with the Code in the course of its inspections and will include the Code itself and any additional regulations applicable to the scope of the activity being audited in its audit processes. When appropriate, the results of the audits will be presented to the President, the Chief Executive Officer, and the legal department of Giunti Psychometrics. To facilitate compliance with the Code, Giunti Psychometrics implements various periodic training initiatives to ensure that employees are adequately informed of the provisions contained in the Code.

What is the relationship between the Code and current legislation?

One of the fundamental elements of the Code is compliance with current regulations when conducting business for Giunti Psychometrics. The current regulatory framework reflects the conduct expectations of the communities in which we operate. Moreover, if laws are broken there is a negative financial and/or image impact on our Company. Non-compliance with laws can also lead to serious consequences, including criminal penalties, for the individuals involved. For these reasons, our Principles, Rules (where applicable) and Procedures place a strong emphasis on compliance with the laws that govern our business activities. The Code is an essential component of Giunti Psychometrics' ethics and compliance program, aimed at ensuring effective prevention and detection of violations of laws and regulations applicable to its activities.

Of course, our activities are subject to the laws of many different countries, and each of us has a strict duty to comply with the laws of the geographic area in which we operate.

If the Code and local law do not conflict, you are required to comply with both. In the event that the laws and regulations in force in a particular jurisdiction are more permissive than those contained in this Code, the latter will prevail.

If you have any doubts about your duties, or if you think you cannot comply with local legislation without violating the Code, or conversely, you should immediately clarify your doubts by contacting the Legal Department and the Human Resources Department.

What conduct may be subject to disciplinary sanctions?

We expect the best from our employees and collaborators, especially in terms of assuming responsibility. Those who violate the Code and applicable legislation, or who behave in a manner contrary to the spirit of the Code, are subject to consequences that may include the possible termination of employment, as well as legal proceedings. Any breach of the Code will be evaluated objectively and fairly by the competent bodies, which will apply the appropriate disciplinary sanctions.

By way of example, but not limited to, types of conduct liable to disciplinary sanctions are:

- Breaching the law or the Code either directly or indirectly
- Being complicit in a violation of the law or the Code
- Providing false and/or misleading information to the Company, or intentionally denying relevant information at any time, including during an investigation
- Failure to adequately supervise the conduct of our People

- Failing to react to known or suspected violations of the law or the Code
- Deliberately ignoring information that falls within one's area of responsibility and that would allow one to become aware of known or suspected violations of the law or the Code
- Not cooperating with or obstructing audits by Human Resources, Legal or other entities engaged in investigations concerning illegal or unethical conduct
- Retaliating against anyone who has reported illegal or unethical conduct

Any waivers, even if only partial and limited in time and object, to the provisions of the Code may only be granted for serious and justified reasons. Any waiver of this Code for members of the Board of Directors of Giunti Psychometrics may only be approved by the Board of Directors of Giunti Psychometrics and must be disclosed in accordance with the provisions of law and other regulations in force.

Where can I find additional information and support?

In the event that you witness or become aware of conduct contrary to the spirit of the Code, it is essential that you take charge of the matter and act.

If you have doubts about the ethical or legal conduct of any member of the company, you have several options to choose from to make them known to the appropriate person. Generally speaking, your line manager is the closest person you can confront about this. If the issue you wish to raise also concerns your line manager, you may contact the Legal Department and the Human Resources Department who will treat your report with strict confidence, even with the help of an impartial observer or expert.

Can the Code be amended?

The Code is subject to revision by the Board of Directors of Giunti Psychometrics. Revisions take into account, among other things, suggestions and comments received from the Board of Directors, Giunti Psychometrics employees and collaborators and third parties, changes in legislation and "best practices", as well as experience acquired in applying the Code itself. Any amendments to the Code introduced as a result of this review shall be promptly published and made available in compliance with applicable regulations.

PART THREE

MANAGING EXTERNAL RELATIONS

a) Avoiding situations of conflict of interest: all our employees and collaborators must always follow a conduct that protects and promotes the best interests of Giunti Psychometrics. Conflict of interest situations may arise when some members of Giunti Psychometrics engage in activities or have personal interests that compromise those of our Company, because these activities or interests directly interfere with their performance of their work duties, or because they make decision-making less objective, or because they cause an undue personal advantage to the employee, collaborator, or director. Such activities may harm the Company financially, but even more significantly, they may damage our reputation. Conflict of interest situations also arise when an employee, collaborator or director, or a member of their family, receives undue personal benefits as a result of their position in the Company. Therefore, it is essential that you manage your relationships and activities, both outside and inside the work environment, in ways that do not interfere, even potentially, with your ability to perform your duties and make fair and objective business decisions. All our employees and contractors are expected to always maintain the highest degree of honesty during their interactions with our partners and to act solely in the best interests of the Company. Any situation that constitutes a conflict of interest, even if only potential, must be reported immediately to your manager or the Board of Directors.

To ensure that Giunti Psychometrics takes full advantage of the time and talents of each employee, should you be asked to serve on a Board of Directors of a profit or non-profit company, please contact the Human Resources and Legal Departments to determine whether such a position must be approved in advance by the competent entities.

b) Supporting the communities in which we operate: in addition to the daily work we do to maintain the excellent results we have achieved and our reputation in the reference sector, Giunti Psychometrics believes it is our duty to invest energy in social programs by supporting them financially, in order to help and enrich the dynamism of the communities in which we live and operate. The development of social initiatives and support for various associations testify to our commitment to our Communities. Giunti Psychometrics actively supports volunteer work and other forms of social commitment. One of the values that unites us is the desire to give something back to the Communities in which we operate. Giunti Psychometrics' social initiatives must be guided by the local management in charge. The Company will carefully assess which initiatives to support, to ensure that our support for one organization and/or initiative does not cause resentment of other organizations, within our workforce or Community.

PART FOUR

MANAGE OUR RESOURCES AND INFORMATION

PRINCIPLES

- a) Communicate effectively: Giunti Psychometrics recognizes the primary role of clear and effective communication in establishing internal and external relationships and ensuring high company standards. Creating a business climate in which communication is swift, open and bidirectional is a key factor in maintaining our success. As members of Giunti Psychometrics, each of us must be committed to protecting company assets and ensuring that they are used only for their intended purposes. It follows that each of us is responsible for protecting and properly using the Company's assets, taking appropriate precautions to safeguard the Company's assets, and those of third parties under the Company's control, from theft, loss, damage, abuse or unauthorized use, access, or destruction, including illegal use or other uses considered inappropriate in any respect. The protection of Giunti Psychometrics' assets is our collective duty and an obligation that we must respect as members of the Company. Since information is a fundamental asset for the company's business, we are individually responsible for maintaining the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of company information, in compliance with legal, regulatory and contractual provisions. Confidential information (any information considered or declared confidential by Giunti Psychometrics, which, if disclosed, could cause legal or financial harm to Giunti Psychometrics or damage the company image) must be kept totally confidential for the duration, and beyond, of an employee's, or other member of the workforce's, or collaborator's employment contract (regardless of the type of collaboration). In addition, our employees and contractors must understand the Company's obligations with respect to third-party confidential information of which they become aware and must act in compliance with them.

In carrying out its business, Giunti Psychometrics collects a significant amount of personal data and confidential information, which it undertakes to process in strict compliance with all applicable privacy laws and our Confidentiality and Security Policies. To this end, Giunti Psychometrics guarantees a high level of security in the selection and use of its Information Technology systems for processing personal data. Giunti Psychometrics' internal controls allow for complete, clear, accurate, timely and comprehensible disclosure not only of the reports and documents that the Company sends to the relevant authorities, but also other public communications, including the financial statements, which accurately represent Giunti Psychometrics' financial position. To this end, it is necessary to maintain accurate and complete internal records of all activities carried out and to require that all transactions and commitments entered into with partners are properly authorized and documented. Accounting records are the exclusive property of Giunti Psychometrics and must be created and maintained in a manner consistent with the Rules and Principles in force.
